OF GEORGES' NEW BOOK

The following is an never-before-seen excerpt from Georges' new book, a sequel to "Engaging Islam"

This book is about discipleship, but it isn't about a program or how to teach Christian doctrine or practices. It's about how to share Christ in the life of a young believer so that the disciple grows to maturity and is able to reproduce Christ in other young believers. Our job isn't finished with conversion. It's just the beginning. We must move new believers into discipleship. But how? Jesus says to teach them to obey everything he commanded. But how do we do that? When Jesus says "to teach," does he mean "teaching" in the same way that we usually practice it—lecturing, note-taking, memorization?

Discipleship is caught, not taught. I'm not saying that teaching isn't valuable—it is absolutely a vital tool for transmitting truths about discipleship. But teaching isn't discipleship. It is only a method, a mechanism, a means.

More importantly, teaching is not the only means of discipleship—it must be one element of a holistic approach that not only fills the mind with information, but also engages the heart, habits, lifestyle, speech, and relationships of the disciple. Teaching about Christ in the classroom only does not really help new believers learn how to be Christians outside the classroom. If we are to raise up disciples who are equipped to follow Christ in every sphere of life, discipleship needs to take place in all those contexts as well...
